When you attend the Little League game there is a parking lot below the diamond. You are not supposed to park along the highway or pull into the fence next to the highway.

But, in case you do pull off the highway to the fence, please turn off your car lights. The lights shine into the eyes of the batter and the umpire, and those of the spectators on the benches.

Speaking of the Little League, the managers of the four teams in the circuit deserve a lot of credit for giving their time to the enterprise.

The man that was run over by the cult-packer last Saturday was probably saved by the post that was knocked down beside him. Since the cult-packer weighs about a half-ton, it would have crushed him.

Three new service stations are due to open in the near future. One on North Fourth, one on South Fourth, and another at the corner of 12th and Chestnut.

A big tree was blown down in the high wind last week, but we missed it. It is out on West Main next to A. Carmon. Tree also blew down in the yard of Mrs. Keys on West Main.

A nice lot has been transformed out of the gulley next to Allen Rose on Vine street.

Littleton's has a new sign on the front of the store.

More stores are putting in air conditioning.

Then there were the two inebrates who were walking down a railroad track and one of them said, "climbing these stairs makes me tired." The other one remarked, "it's not the stairs that are killing me, it's the low bannisters."

Our sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Caraway and Mr. and Mrs. James Shelton who were worried to death about their kids the other night.

Bryan Tolley is hobnobbing around with a brokenfoot. Just walked out the back door, slipped and broke it.

He is getting around, but with difficulty.

We like the way the Murray Fire Department has the station when the whistle blows. They don't waste any time.

Congratulations to Mr. T. O. Turner on his birthday today. He is 81-years old, and still as sharp as any business man we know.

Fishermen Receive
Warning About
Unsanitary Practice

FRANKFORT June 19 (UP)—The State Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources warned fishermen that fishing may be prohibited because of the actions of some fishermen.

Commissioner Earle Wallace said he had received a complaint from the TVA about sanitary conditions along the Tennessee River below the dam.

The complaint stemmed from many fishermen throwing unsuitable fish onto the banks of the river. The fish began to decay in a few hours and created a nuisance.

Wallace said if fishermen would toss such unwanted fish back into the river the condition would be remedied. He quoted the TVA as saying unless the condition is corrected by routine inspection and a warning the next step might well be the closing of that area to fishing until such a time that fishermen have reformed.

The Week's Balance Sheet In The Hot And Cold War

By PHIL NEWSON
United Press Foreign News

The week's balance sheet between the good and bad news in the hot and cold wars:

THE GOOD

1. The Communists were having trouble of their own. On Wednesday, East Berliners exploded and staged a bloody revolt. By Wednesday night and Thursday the revolt had spread to other cities of East Germany and thousands of workers went on strike in defiance of Russian tanks and guns.

2. An official Moscow announcement disclosed still other Communist troubles. It said the first secretary of the Ukrainian Communist Party's central committee had been fired, and the Ukrainian vice premier also had been relieved of his post.

3. In the South American republic of Colombia order was being restored after a bloodless coup which installed Lt. Gen. Rojas Pinillas at the head of government.

Gaylord Forrest Graduates From Naval War College

NEWPORT, R. I. (UP)—Secretary of the Navy Robert E. Anderson, June 10, presented diplomas to 241 officers graduating from the U. S. Naval War College.

Graduating from the course in "Command and Staff" is Navy Lt. Cdr. Gaylord T. Forrest, husband of the former Miss Marilyn Mason of Murray.

RED BERLIN RUNS ANTI-RED

MAP OF CENTRAL BERLIN locates principal points of rioting against Communist government tactics. On Unter den Linden three truckloads of Soviet troops charged to defense of the Soviet embassy; loads of Soviet troops charged to defense of the Soviet embassy; in Leipzigstrasse several wounded demonstrators were dragged into the U. S. zone by comrades, and a Communist official was beaten when he tried to address the crowd; in Potsdamerplatz, West Berliners gathered to shout encouragement as "peace" posters displayed the dean of Canterbury and Paul Robeson were trampled; on East Berlin side of the Brandenburg Gate, Soviet troops armed with submachine guns were on hand to prevent a mass break for the west. It was the biggest anti-Communist hubbub in history, with hundreds of casualties, including two persons run over by Red tanks.

Letter To Editor

Mr. Jim Williams
The Ledger and Times
Murray, Kentucky

Dear Mr. Williams:

The Murray Board of Education has instructed me to express its thanks for the fine support you gave the schools during the recent campaign for maintaining school taxes. Your several stories and A-1 front page editorial no doubt did much to secure the unprecedented 96% per cent majority on a tax question.

On behalf of the faculty and staff as well as the Board we do thank you.

Respectfully yours,
W. Z. Carter

Former Murrayan Is Prominent In Work Of Club In Louisville, Her Present Home

A recent article in the Louisville Courier-Journal is believed to be of interest to many Murrayans and is being reprinted below.

Mrs. Hardy Adair, president of the club mentioned in the story is the former Miss Letta Johnson and was born in Calloway County. She is a sister of the late deceased Mrs. Kora Rowland, and her mother, Mrs. E. N. Johnson now lives in Murray.

Two brothers, Robert and John Edd Johnson also live here, and a sister, Mrs. Emily Blankenship, lives in Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Adair attended Murray High School and Murray State College.

The article was sent to the Ledger and Times by Mrs. Frank Skees of Louisville.

A group of Jefferson County homemakers, the Echo Trail Club has its own Point 4 system of aid to people overseas.

This week the members collected money to send a one-horse walking plow to India. The cost is around $18.

The idea of sending a plow to India came about when the club's citizenship chairman, Mrs. Frank Skees, 3102 Dixie Highway, heard on the radio that people in India these days were plowing with sticks.

"We're always looking around for some way to help," Mrs. Skees said. "When I heard that it sort of hit home. We believe if we can aid such people even a little bit it may help bring peace."

After Mrs. Skees heard about the stick plowing, she read an ad in a magazine about CARE's program there—one that encourages use of modern agricultural methods to increase food production. So she and the other members went to work to get India another plow.

Looked At Plows Here

The $18 collected at the club's meeting this week at South Park Fishing Club will be sent to CARE's New York office. (Just so members will know what their money is going for, they have been looking around at plows in supply houses here.)

The plow for India is not the club's first overseas good-will project. This year it also helped out in the Seeds for Democracy campaign. Mrs. Hardy Adair, Glenmore Road, president says, members have sent 42 pounds of assorted vegetable seeds and 5 pounds of flower seeds to the Philippines.

(From Seeds for Democracy headquarters in San Francisco, the seeds are put in cartons and sent to the Philippines for distribution through schools, churches, orphanages, civic groups, and the Department of Agriculture. The program was started in 1950.)

And now, Mrs. Adair says, grateful replies from the Philippines have started an exchange of letters. "Recipes are exchanged and we give the Philippines some pointers on gardening."

Have Local Projects, Too

The overseas-aid program doesn't mean these homemakers are un-mindful of needs right here at home. Mrs. Skees reports the club cut out and sewed 31 robes for patients at Children's Hospital, helped out a family in which the father was sick and gave groceries to the former Home for the Aged and Infirm in Shively. Right now members are considering ways in which they may be helpful at the Louisville-Marine Hospital for the Treatment of Chronic Illness.

The 22 members, who sew, re-finish furniture, and do the other projects of County Homemakers clubs, have been basket-weaving lately.

And the hot weather doesn't stop them from such work. Tuesday when they met with Mrs. George Pault at the South Park club, they put on their bathing suits and made baskets in the water. "If we didn't get in the water, we would have had to use tubs of it anyway for the weaving," Mrs. Pault said. "so we thought we might as well keep cool while we work."

Centers Named For Distribution Of Polio Vaccine

LOUISVILLE June 19 (UP)—The State Department of Health yesterday began a new phase in fighting polio, setting up distribution centers for gamma globulin in nine new cities, including Lexington and Covington.

Gamma globulin has been shown to lessen the paralyzing effects of polio and the state has been allotted 2,400 doses by the Office of Defense Mobilization.

Previously, all of the globulin was kept in Louisville but now families of polio victims may secure it in any of 10 cities. Dr. B. M. Drake, deputy state health commissioner, said this would allow polio victims to receive doses faster.

The first 130 doses received were distributed here and to the nine new distribution points yesterday. The new points are Harlan, Covington, Booneville, Somerset, Paducah, Bowling Green, Lexington, Owensboro and Ashland.

Drake urged members of polio victims' families to go after the gamma globulin personally, to save time that would be lost by mailing from the distribution centers.

Both Go To Chair Without Show Of Emotion Or Fear

SING SING PRISON, N. Y. (UP)—June 20—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, defiant to the last, paid with their lives for betraying their native land.

Mad-faced Ethel came calmly, stoically, into the death chamber only two minutes after her husband's body had been rolled into an autopsy room less than 20-feet away.

Mrs. Helen Evans, a prison matron who had been in constant attendance on Mrs. Rosenberg during the two years the convicted spy had been in the death house here and Mrs. Lucy Many, a prison telephone operator, accompanied the condemned woman to the chair.

As Mrs. Rosenberg reached the grim walnut chair, she turned suddenly, impulsive, grasped Mrs. Evans' hand and then kissed her on the right cheek. She mumbled, "Goodbye, thank you."

Then the dumpy little woman turned, took another step forward and sat down in the chair.

At 8:11 1/2 the switch was thrown. Four and one-half minutes and after four more shocks Ethel Rosenberg was dead.

Doctors H. W. Kipp and George McCracken applied their stethoscopes to her chest.

Kipp turned to the warden and said: "I pronounce this woman dead."

Ten official witnesses, six prison guards and Francis were in the 40 by 40-foot death chamber to see the Rosenbergs die.

They were U. S. Marshal William A. Carroll, Warden Whitely L. Deery, Rabbi Irving Koolove, of Manassas, N. Y.; Thomas M. Farley, Carroll's deputy; Paul McGinnis, deputy commissioner of the State Bureau of Prisons, Doctors Kipp and McCracken, and three newspapermen.

At 8:02 p.m.—the door to the left of the chair opened and down the "last mile" came Ethel Rosenberg.

He was clean-shaven, he no longer had the moustache which he wore when he went to the death house. He wore a T-shirt, brown trousers with a tan pin-stripe, and loafers.

At 8:08 p.m.—the door to the left of the chair opened and down the "last mile" came Ethel Rosenberg.

Rabbi Koolove preceded her, reading aloud passages from the 18th and 21st Psalms. On her left was Mrs. Evans. Mrs. Many was on her right. Two male guards followed.

The condemned woman was dressed in an ill-fitting green figured print dress supplied by the state. She wore no stockings and on her feet were loafers similar to those worn by her husband.

She did not know as she sat there that her husband already was dead. Similarly, Julius, when he was strapped into the chair, did not know whether his wife had preceded him in death.

"Book Burning" Denounced

The forces of democracy have acquitted themselves well on the battlefield during the past generation, or more. We can't say they have done so well in the fight for the minds of men, a field of more importance.

Since the revolution in Russia in 1918 Communism has been the most dynamic force in the world so far as politics is concerned. Indeed it is so strong in every country in the world, including our own, that it is almost a religion and democratic nations have made a mighty feeble effort to combat it.

Probably one reason it has been so hard to fight Communism is because of the temporary popularity of various forces that come to the surface for the avowed purpose of fighting it. We seem to think being "against" something will be effective, while the truth about the matter is that forces that fight Communism the hardest do so because of fear. Secretly they admire its force and power and try to imitate them. This was true of Fascism, Nazism and ultra-conservatism in democratic nations.

We believe an irritating character like Senator Joseph McCarthy who represents the extreme right has a place in democracy, but we need to be reminded every now and then that he represents a way of life that is foreign to our concepts of liberty and justice. And this President Eisenhower did in his speech to a graduating class at one of the nation's leading universities.

In denouncing the "burning of books" the President has acted in the highest traditions of democracy. It is an acknowledgment that we can't fight Communism successfully by "stacking our head in the sand" and denying that it exists. If we embrace it as a result of reading books concerning it, that's the way it will have to be. But our greatest students don't believe we will. And President Eisenhower doesn't believe we will, either.

What the future holds in store nobody knows, but there is no use in denying Communism owes its popularity and growth to the desire of mankind for a better way of life. We know we have what it takes to provide a better way, but we are spending more time and effort "witch hunting" while the Communists are given an almost free hand in spreading their "religion."

We have made lots of mistakes in fighting Communism, but it was no mistake to help destroy Communism's strongest enemies in Europe, and if we need a warning against supporting forces we poured out so much blood and treasure to defeat a few short years ago we need look no further than Italy and carefully consider returns from last week's general elections there.

The Communists we have spent so many millions to oppose in Italy made a poorer showing than they did four years ago, but the Fascists, who killed so many American boys in World War Two, gained four times as many offices as they formerly held while democratic parties failed miserably. In Western Germany four would-be "second Hitlers" have been arrested in less than six months.

President Eisenhower commanded the forces that helped the Communists defeat Fascists and Nazis. He probably understands what Communist aims are as much as any man in America. In denouncing the "burning of books" on Communism he is telling the world Democracy can hold its own, and we believe it can. We can't beat Communism by being afraid of it.

Sal Maglie Cut Down The Milwaukee Braves 15-1

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK June 20 (UP)—The old timers aren't going to like this but Fearless Farley is going to bust a gut today if such ancient as Dumb Dan Morgan, Pudge Heffelfinger and Rogers Hornsby keep sounding off about his "good old days."

To hear the greybeards tell it, grandpappy was a fellow foaled in a blast furnace who grew up to be a cross between King Kong and Paul Bunyon. I've always been surprised that the common horse got credit for pulling the covered wagon across the plains.

The old timers seem to doubt that the modern youngster can belt over a milkshake singlehanded. To hear them yell, you wouldn't think the kids could make it down to the Red Cross for a transfusion.

Maybe Fearless Farley can't qualify for the current flaming youth, but I've got news for the grandpappy could do — and they can do it better.

What brings this to mind is the chiding remark of former major league pitcher Mike Prendergast, who flatters his 63 years by asserting that ball players today "don't stay in shape."

Hah! It's simply that the ball player of today doesn't have it nearly so good as the oldtimers, what with 15th nighmarish life of day and night games. Pitchers find it tougher because fences are pulled in and dirty baseballs and the spitter have been discarded.

As for the hitters, defensive strategies are at a scientific peak never before achieved.

Walter Johnson, one of the greatest of the old heroes, admitted he never had a curve but depended on blinding speed alone. As Joe DiMaggio points out:

"The batter today will hit a ball shot out of a cannon — unless the pitcher puts something on the ball."

Personally, I'm ill and weary of hearing Dumb Dan Morgan elevate Jim Jeffries to boxing's top spot and charge that the batters today don't do enough road work. Jeffries had 23 fights in his entire career.

Some of the moderns fight that much in one year. As for the roadwork, maybe Jeffries did so much that he just didn't have time to fight any more. It simmers down to a question of selection.

Heffelfinger will tell you the kids of today are "soft." Well, they haven't always played two-platoon football and fellows like Doc Flannery and Leon Hart, just to name a couple, could have played football with Pudge and lived, I'm sure.

The "big example," of course, was the late Jim Thorpe. I'm not knocking the Indian iron man but we had a 22-year-old named Bob Mathias win the 10-event decathlon in the last Olympics — and he surpassed Thorpe handsily in nine of the 10 events. A 15-year-old named Milt Campbell was second — and he was better than the great Thorpe in eight of the 10 events.

Women Refinish Picture Frames

Mrs. Herbert Cochran of Crittenden county enjoyed the Edgemoor Road Homemakers Club lesson on pictures so much that she has framed about 15 of them, some of which she plans for gifts.

At a sale, Mrs. Cochran bought several old picture frames which she reworked, refinished or painted, giving them the effect of belonging to certain picture-makers; used made of different types of paper, fabric or mat-board, as suggested by Mrs. Myra Burton, home furnishings specialist at the University of Kentucky.

Bass Fishing Bad, But Bluegills Biting

FRANKFORT June 20 (UP)—

The State Fish and Wildlife Department had little encouragement for bass fishermen in its weekly fishing report today but said bluegill were doing excellent sport in many lakes and ponds.

The report said bass fishing was still poor at Dale Hollow, Kentucky Lake, Herrington Lake and Cumberland; although jump fish was continuing at Dale Hollow and Lake Cumberland.

The department said bluegill are making a comeback at Dale Hollow by anglers using crawfish, worms and shrimp.

A Message to the American People
FROM THE
U.S. AIR FORCE:

THE GROUND OBSERVER CORPS
IS VITAL TO OUR AIR DEFENSE...
CIVILIAN VOLUNTEERS ARE URGENTLY NEEDED IN THIS AREA NOW!

What you do...

Trained in aircraft identification by U. S. Air Force training teams you man your Observation Post and "spot" planes... detecting their approach by eye and by radar, identifying their types. Certain planes—and you'll learn which—you report instantly to your Air Defense Filter Center over a special Air Force long-distance circuit. With air traffic heavy, you'll be busy. And you'll know that your work is vitally important... for the planes you spot might be unfriendly that got through the radar screen.

What follows...

The information you phone in is plotted on a large map at the Air Defense Filter Center. Based on your report and those from other Observation Posts, a "track" is established. Progress reports on this track are made to the nearest Air Defense Direction Center. Radar "fixes" may show this same track... but also they may not. Low-altitude loopholes are inevitable between radar scanner... and low-flying planes can get through. Only your eyes and ears can plug these loopholes!

What happens then...

Then, the Air Force takes over. The aircraft track, as plotted, is checked with flight plans on file. If positive identification of the planes you report is not established, fighter-interceptors take off immediately to challenge the planes and either prove them friendly or shoot them down. In addition, in special target areas, anti-aircraft batteries of the U. S. Army Anti-Aircraft Command are alerted. All this action may start with you!... at your Observation Post... winning your GOC wings!

THE RAMPARTS WE WATCH!

This entire shaded area is the air defense perimeter of the continental United States. Any part of the United States is vulnerable right now to air attack. If hostile planes are not detected by people like yourself.

WADAR STANDS GUARD

ceaselessly... manned by the U. S. Air Force. But hostile planes could still swoop in through low-altitude loopholes between radar scanners. Total defense requires your... eyes and ears, too!
